

From July 19th in 1936 Spain to here today Anarchist social revolution is still necessary!

On July 19th 1936 in Spain, an anarchist social revolution broke out in the midst of a merciless civil war. While the CNT-AIT militias and Franco's military troops fought each other with unequal weapons, workers self-managed factories and peasants collectivised land on a scale that remains unparalleled to this day.

Libertarian communism: it is possible because they dared!

They realised their ideal of a free society.

The fruits of everyone's labour were distributed according to each person's needs. Decisions were made from the bottom up: this was libertarian communism.

From hope to action

This story still resonates with us today as a source of hope. A hope that drives us to fight both for immediate demands and for a revolutionary goal. This balance will make it possible to create the conditions for a better life for all, a life without bosses or the state, without capitalism or bureaucrats.

The revolution will be a libertarian and social revolution, otherwise it will not be a true revolution!

Down with capitalism and the State!

Long live libertarian communism and anarcho-syndicalism!
